About GSA

The University of Melbourne Graduate Student Association (GSA) is the independent representative organisation for all graduate coursework and research students at the University of Melbourne. GSA is led by 8 GSA Board members and 10 Representative Council members, who are all elected University of Melbourne graduate students. On behalf of over 29,000 constituents we represent graduate student interests to the University and wider community, provide student engagement events, activities, and information to the graduate student community, and support 160 affiliated graduate student groups.

GSA's vision is for cohesive communities that actively empower graduate students to achieve meaningful holistic outcomes and experiences. Our mission is to enable and build these communities through proactive, responsible representation and advocacy; purposeful, impactful services and support; and strong partnerships with the University of Melbourne and relevant stakeholders and agencies.

Role Purpose

A vital part of GSA's representation work is to ensure that graduate students have a voice in how the University develops policies and adheres to proper processes in undertaking its activities. Every major decision made at the University will be discussed on the relevant committee before it is implemented, which is why student representation is so important.

GSA's nominated graduate student committee members are the direct voice for graduate students in the room and share the unique perspective and experiences of graduate students with the academic and professional staff members of the committee.

GSA relies on our nominated committee members to keep us informed about discussions and decisions made by the University, so that we can continue to advocate and represent the interests of all graduate students.
